

PRESIDENT MAY GET TO BOSTON TONIGHT

taxes, go into effect immediately upon the President's signature. Many other bills will demand his approval, and on the closing day of Congress, March 4, the President probably will fly to the Capitol to be ready to sign measures before adjournment.

Many important conferences with political leaders are on his schedule, and he will be given advice concerning the necessities of an extra session of Congress, probably announcing his intentions on the matter. Requests are pouring in from individuals and organizations who desire to see the President and give him their opinions on world affairs, but the majority of these must be refused.

Thursday he will drop executive matters and march in a parade for returned soldiers, which, despite his requests, will also be a demonstration for him. Washington is planning a great welcome.

SUFFRAGETTES TO BURN PRESIDENT'S SPEECHES AS BOSTON EXTENDS WELCOME

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—Prospects of suffragettes interfering with President Wilson while he is in Boston tomorrow are considered slight, despite assertion of suffragette leaders, headed by Miss Alice Paul, of Washington, that they are going to tell the President he should have remained in Washington and demanded that certain Democratic Senators vote for the suffrage amendment.

Drastic action by the police is threatened if any attempt at demonstration is made by the militants. In spite of this, however, the suffragettes are said to be planning a bonfire on Boston Common following the arrival of President Wilson, when speeches delivered by him will be burned.

'We're Awaiting You,' Phones Daniels To President

This was the message Secretary Daniels spoke into the ear of the President via wireless telephone yesterday:

"Mr. President: You will receive a great welcome when you arrive at Boston. The destroyers and the aircraft and the Denver will meet you. Mayor Peters and Admiral Wood have made all arrangements.

"See you Tuesday. Great welcome in Washington. Good-by."

In the room with Secretary Daniels when he transmitted his message to the President were Rear Admiral Griffin, chief of the Bureau of Navigation; Commander Foote, personal aide to the Secretary; Commander Cooper, of the Radio Service, and Yeoman Farrell, who made the mechanical arrangements for the conversation.

The telephone on Mr. Daniels' desk had been connected with the radio transmitter at the great trans-Atlantic station in New Brunswick, Canada.

Secretary Daniels' voice operated through the induction coils of the radio at New Brunswick, just as if the impulses had been given by the wireless telegraph key there, so that the direct communication with the President was about 1,700 miles.

yesterday afternoon between Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, who arrived from Washington yesterday, and Mayor Peters, it was announced that President Wilson's first message to the American people on the League of Nations would be delivered at Mechanics' Hall at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

New U. S. Victory Bonds To Be Sold to Soldiers As They Patrol Germany

Another bitter pill has been prescribed for the Germans! American Victory Bonds will be sold right on German soil. Plans have been completed whereby Yankee soldier-bond salesmen will canvass the army of occupation during the next war loan drive. Frank R. Wilson, director of war loan publicity, has announced.

WORLD RED CROSS TO COME UP SOON

ROME, Feb. 22.—Work toward internationalization of the Red Cross societies of the world, through which they will become a vital factor in the League of Nations, will be taken up soon by a committee representing the American, British, French, Italian, and Japanese organizations.

The committee, meeting in Cannes, France, will formulate a plan to be presented to the world congress of the Red Cross in Geneva, which will meet thirty days after the peace treaty is signed. The world's leading specialists on hygiene, sanitation, and nursing have been invited to Cannes to help develop a program on each subject.

The contemplated international organization is expected to keep the national societies advised by world conditions, suggesting remedies and leaving the national societies to carry them out. H. P. Davidson, chairman of the American Red Cross Council, outlined the scheme at a dinner here. He read the following wireless from President Wilson:

"I sincerely trust the plans will receive the support and active assistance of all governments and all peoples."

ALLEGED ONE-SIDED VIEW OF RED RULE

Additional barriers to future cooperation between America and the Russian people are being created by the Senate investigation into alleged Bolshevik propaganda in the United States, eighteen well-known sociologists, writers, and travelers declared yesterday in a petition to the Overman subcommittee committee conducting the investigation.

The petitioners, who included Paul C. Kellogg, Lincoln Colcord, Caroline T. Bacon, Percy Stickney Grant, and Mrs. Charles Edward Russell, charged that but one side of the story of Russian conditions under soviet rule is being brought out and that the American people are being misled by a one-sided view of the situation.

The committee is requested in the appeal to call as witnesses Col. William E. Thompson, Col. Raymond Robins, Major Allen Wardwell, and Major Thomas D. Thatcher, formerly in Russia for the American Red Cross; Gen. William V. Judson, head of the American military mission attached to the Russian government; William Franklin Sanders, of the American International Corporation; Jerome Davis, and F. Winkler, recently returned to this country from Russia; M. C. A. work; Frank Keeble, head of the English Quaker Red Cross in Russia; Gregory Yarrow, Associated Press correspondent at Petrograd; Dr. Edward A. Ross, and Henry C. Emery, in Russia in 1917 and 1918, and captured by the Germans in Finland while returning to America.

The petitioners declare that none of these men are socialists, and only a few actually sympathetic toward Lenin and Trotsky, but that all hold a different view of the alleged Bolshevik terror depicted by the witnesses already called before the committee.

Don't try to fool your conscience by checking the returning soldiers and forgetting to pay your income tax. An income tax evader hasn't taken on any of the other 170 Germans.

POLICE PREPARE TO ENFORCE BONE DRY

Final preparations are today being made by the police to enforce strictly the law making the District bone dry when the Reed amendment is signed by President Wilson.

The "prohibition squads" which were formed at each of the several police precincts to enforce the Shepard law will be particularly active in the enforcement of the law, while the special investigation squad, under the direction of Lieut. J. W. Pearson, of the Second Precinct, whose investigations are of a wider scope, will also take an active part.

Will Hold Council.

A meeting of the captains and lieutenants will probably be held in Major Fullam's office tomorrow afternoon to discuss the enforcement of the Reed bone-dry amendment. Agents of the Department of Justice and Internal Revenue will also cooperate with the local police.

Internal Revenue agents have been traveling daily to and from Baltimore on the steam and electric railroads keeping tabs on passengers who have been in the habit of making daily trips to Baltimore. Much of the information obtained against alleged bootleggers has been gathered by agents from the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Department of Justice.

Many Suitcases Seen.

An unusually large number of persons made the trip to Baltimore yesterday to replenish their liquor stocks before the signing of the Reed amendment. Hundreds of empty suitcases were noted at the Union Station yesterday afternoon.

Following the signing of the Reed amendment all roads leading into Washington from Baltimore, as well as the Union Station and the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad terminal, will be watched especially for violators of the bone-dry law.

MISS RANKIN BACKS MANN CANDIDACY

The suffrage issue was injected into the fight for the speakership of the next House last night by a statement from Congresswoman Jeanette Rankin of Montana cutting upon the suffragists of the country to come to the support of Congressman James R. Mann of Illinois.

Miss Rankin's statement was also regarded as the forerunner of the suffragists' fight to put the Susan B. Anthony amendment through the next Congress, which will be Republican in both branches.

Has Clean Record.

"Mr. Mann throughout his long congressional career has stood for progressive and sane legislation," said Miss Rankin. "As an ex-Senator and as a Republican leader in the House his record has earned him the speakership."

"Mr. Mann voted for the suffrage amendment to the Constitution when he was forced to leave the hospital to do so and he suffered intense pain for days as a result. And the suffrage amendment carried in the House by one vote."

"If elected Speaker he can be relied upon to use his influence to see that the Republican party's pledge to the women of the country is carried out."

Regrets Absent.

"I am very sorry that I will not be here to vote for him as Speaker when the next Congress is organized, for I believe that the interests of the women of America will best be served by his election."

"Every woman interested in gaining the right of franchise should support him. And remember we haven't 'he vote yet'."

Miss Rankin's statement closely followed Mann's utterance that Senators Lodge and Penrose and Will Hays, national Republican chairman, were trying to defeat him because they hoped to control the legislation of the next House.

PRESIDENT IS DESIROUS FOR BOSTON RECEPTION TO BE LARGELY INFORMAL

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—As the time for President Wilson's arrival draws near, it is becoming more apparent that he wishes his welcome to be as informal as possible because of the short time he will spend in Boston. Although it is certain now that the President will speak here in the afternoon, the exact time for his address has not been set, and probably will not be known until Monday when the George Washington arrives. It is believed, however, he will appear at Mechanics' Hall, between 2 and 4 o'clock, and leave for Washington early in the evening, probably before 8 o'clock.

With the arrival of Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's secretary, who goes into conference with Mayor Peters today, and plans for the President's reception will be completed. It is not likely that the present plans will need to be changed, as all arrangements were made subject to the time of the President's arrival and to his wishes.

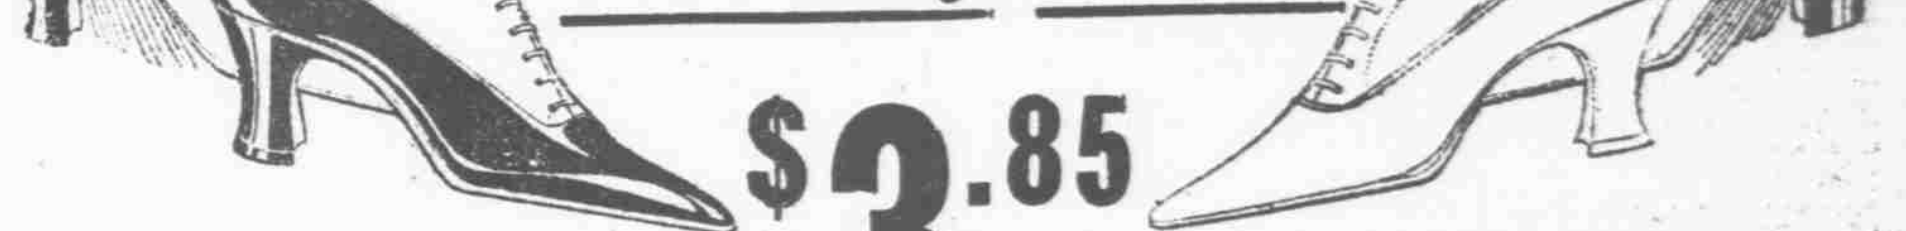

Snow, which was falling early today, covered the streets with a slush, but later the weather cleared, although a snowstorm is forecast for Monday night.

DAY HIGHER WAGES.

Demanders of employees of the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company for increased wages were refused today by the War Labor Board on the grounds that wages now paid are practically equal to those at other copper mining companies in the same district.
